Greetings

Roberto Benes
Director
UNICEF Tokyo Office

On behalf of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), I would like to express my heartfelt appreciation to the International Certification Network and the Japan Quality Assurance Organization for organizing such a wonderful International Environmental Children's Drawing Contest every year.

Last year, I had the privilege to be part of the Contest's jury for the first time. Each and every drawing delighted me and I admired every single one of them as they were rich in dazzling colors and full of hope, joy and harmony between mankind and nature. They were also carrying messages of concern and alert for the growing climate emergency and the world of adults should listen to this call for help. As the United Nations Secretary General said, "Time is running out" and children have well understood this. Their drawings were an explicit reminder of our personal responsibility to care and protect Planet Earth.

The theme of the 22nd Contest is "Choosing Eco-Friendly Lifestyles". Nowadays, global warming and climate crisis have become a global concern and there is greater understanding and agreement that more and urgent action is critical for preserving the rich diversity of life on our planet. Please share your ideas with us. What kind of choices shall we make to live a sustainable life? How can we find ways of living that are less harmful not only for humans but for all the precious living creatures? What can we do to make the world a greener place? Let us see the picture of the future where you want to be living.

UNICEF has been working for 75 years to help every child and young people fulfill their potential in more than 190 countries. However, without an environment fit for children, there will be no world where the rights of every child can be realized. Please inspire us with your creative ideas of preserving the beautiful Earth. I look forward to seeing many more of these powerful drawings.
